Snowmobile Fun Facts

The first snowmobiles (circa 1923) were modified Ford Model-T's with the undercarriage removed and replaced with tracks and skis.

Modern snowmobiles can reach speeds in excess of 193 kmh (120 mph), and racing snowmobiles can go much faster.

Norway hosts an annual snowmobile river drag race, where high-speed machines actually race across the surface of the water!

Snowmobilers in Canada and the United States spend over $27 billion a year on their sport, and snowmobiles are becoming more popular in Europe every year.

STAR WARS™

From the canyons of Utapau to the darkest depths of space, the name of General Grievous is feared throughout the galaxy. Now, for the first time, you can build the cyborg general's signature spacecraft, with all the detail and excitement you expect from the LEGO Star Wars collection!

SLEEK. STREAMLINED. SINISTER.

GENERAL GRIEVOUS' STARFIGHTER VEHICLE FACT FILE

Type: Modified Belbullab-22 starfighter

Manufacturer: Feethan Ottraw Scalable Assemblies (Techno Union)

Weapons: Twin rapid-fire laser cannons

Length: 6.71 meters

Affiliation: Confederacy of Independent Systems Separatists

Features:

- ① Movable laser cannons
- ② Sliding canopy
- ③ Folding landing brace
- ④ Lightsaber storage rack

DATAFILE:

GENERAL GRIEVOUS

Once a proud warrior of the Kaleesh species, General Grievous was a skilled tactician with a keen mind for military strategy. When he was badly injured in a shuttle crash, the Separatists rebuilt the ruthless general into a mighty cyborg. He agreed to lead their droid armies in exchange for saving his life, and his battle droid legions soon struck many powerful blows against the worlds of the Republic.

Grievous was trained by the famous Count Dooku

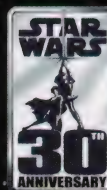

(a.k.a. Darth Tyrannus) to use lightsabers, which he could wield with all four of his mechanically-enhanced arms at the same time. Jedi Knights were his favorite prey, and for each enemy that fell at his hands, he added a new lightsaber to his collection.

Like General Grievous himself, his starfighter is technologically overpowered.

It includes a miniature hyperdrive for traveling between star systems, as well as ion engines for high-speed combat maneuvers. A thrust vectoring fin at the back adds to its speed and the deadly accuracy of its rapid-fire laser cannons. ■

WATER FACTS

The record for deepest dive by a submarine is just over four miles!

WATER FACTS

A modern submarine can stay underwater for six months without surfacing!

GIANT LOBSTER

These large marine crustaceans usually live alone in rocky crevices or burrows on the ocean floor. Lobsters have poor eyesight and mostly use their long antennae to sense the undersea world around them. They grow all through their lives, so a very old lobster is also a very big one. The largest known lobster was found in Canada and weighed more than 44 pounds.

THE CREATURES OF THE SEAF!

Far beneath the ocean waves lurk the mysterious denizens of the depths. These strange sea creatures live in an underwater world very different from our own...a world that the Aqua Raiders are ready to explore! Get ready to dive into action and adventure as you encounter... ■

DEEP SEA ANGLER

The deep sea angler fish is named for its highly unique lure for prey. A long, flexible spine sticks up from the angler's head. By wiggling the glowing bulb at the end of the spine, it attracts fish that think they've found a fisherman's lure. When they go after the bait, the angler snaps its jaws and it's all over for the unsuspecting snack.

SEA SNAKE

Don't confuse these aquatic reptiles with eels. Sea snakes are found in tropical oceans, and the venom in the fangs of some species can be 10 times as strong as that of a rattlesnake. They have flattened bodies to help them swim, preventing them from moving easily on land. Although they can hold their breath for a long time, they must occasionally return to the surface for air.

AQUA FACTS:

SEA SNAKE— Sea snakes are part of the same group of snakes as cobras!

LOBSTER— Though they are normally slow sea-bottom walkers, a lobster in danger can swim quickly through the water — backwards!

DEEP SEA ANGLER— The angler can expand its jaws and stomach to swallow a meal up to twice its own size!

GIANT SQUID— At over a foot in diameter, giant squid have the largest eyes of any living creature, with the possible exception of their fellow giant, the Colossal Squid!

THE CRE OF THE SEA

GIANT LOBSTER

Lobsters have poor eyesight and mostly use their long antennae to sense the undersea world around them. They grow all through their lives, so a very old lobster is also a very big one. The largest known lobster was found in Canada and weighed more than 44 pounds.

Far beneath the surface, different creatures of the deep are active. LEGO Raiders bring these creatures to life in a new way.

SEA SNAKE

TIGER SHARK

One of the largest shark species, the tiger shark can grow as long as 21.5 feet from nose to tail. These fierce, powerful predators prefer to hunt alone, usually at night. They have excellent eyesight and senses of smell and have been known to dive more than 1,000 feet below the ocean's surface in search of prey. Unlike most shark species, tiger sharks are definitely dangerous to humans.

GIANT CRAB

Cousins to lobsters, these armored crustaceans are protected by a sturdy, flattened shell and a pair of large claws. As omnivores, they'll eat just about anything that they can find, whether plant or animal. The smallest crab is the tiny pea crab, while the largest, the Japanese spider crab, can live up to 100 years and grow to have a leg-span of nearly 13 feet.

GIANT SQUID

Once thought to be only a myth told by frightened sailors, giant squid are very real indeed. They live in the deep ocean and can grow as much as 44 feet long. Each of their arms is covered with hundreds of toothed suction cups for grabbing onto prey, and their pair of long tentacles helps them capture food and carry it to their sharp beaks. When threatened, squids can expel a cloud of dark ink from their bodies to confuse enemies and help them escape.

FIDDLER CRAB— The male fiddler crab has one tiny claw and one enormous one. Their giant claws are waved in the air or tapped on the ground to attract mates, but they're too big to eat with!

TIGER SHARK— Tiger sharks will eat almost anything. Some have even been found with old license plates and pieces of car tires in their stomachs!
